4 Excellent Solutions for Cleaner Windows

You probably don't want to spend too much time maintaining the look of clean windows. Well, there are a few simple methods you can use to cut down on constant upkeep of your windows.

Outside windowsills and frames

Maintaining outside windowsills and frames can be challenging; however, there are a few simple tricks you can use to help with this matter.

If your wooden window frames have black or gray mildew on them you can wash them with a bleach-detergent solution.

Use 2 ounces of household bleach and 1 ounce of laundry detergent in a quart of water. After sponging the solution on the spots let it sit for 10 minutes and then rinse it off.

As far as windowsills that get dirty quickly applying a coat of floor wax will help to protect them from the elements.

Windows that streak or get dirty too fast

In order to avoid streaks on windows after washing use a squeegee with a soft rubber edge. Dry a 1inch section of glass and start with the squeegee there; starting with an area of dry glass helps to prevent streaking.

Washing windows in direct sunlight will cause streaking because the windows will dry too fast. Pick a cloudy day or an evening to wash windows to prevent streaking from occurring

If you notice the interior glass on your windows getting dirty faster than normal you may need to change the filter on your furnace or air conditioner. A filter needs to be changed whenever you can't see light through the filter when you hold it up.

If the reason for window grime is secondhand smoke then you will need to use a solution that contains ammonia. Add 1cup of lemon scented ammonia to 2 ½ gallons of water.

The ammonia will cut through the dirt and the lemon scent will leave your house smelling better.

Shades, blinds, and screens can add to a dirty outlook

Your windows may be clean but this won't help if your shades, blinds or screens are filthy. Use a soft cloth or Swiffer to dust shades often. If you notice spots or stains on the shades then it is time to wash them.

The easiest way to accomplish this is by washing them in a bathtub or shower. Use a ¼ cup of white vinegar in a quart of water to get your shades nice and clean.

If your blinds seem to attract dust quickly spray them with an anti-static spray. Use Static Guard on the blinds after you have cleaned them.

It is best to wash screens outside. Shake the dirt and dust loose by rapping the screen lightly against a hard surface.

Use a soft-bristled brush to scrub the screens on both sides with lemon-scented dishwashing detergent and hot water. Thoroughly rinse and air- dry the screens before reinstalling.

How can you Declutter Your Home in Less than Five Minutes?

Decluttering your home can provide many benefits past just a cleaner home. When you get rid of physical clutter, it often allows you to actually let go of clutter in your mind, too. Here are a few ways you can declutter your home in less than five minutes.

Choose a Counter

Sometimes, looking at an entire room and thinking about decluttering it can feel very overwhelming. However, taking five minutes or less to clear off one counter is a good start. Of course, your goal is to eventually get all flat surfaces free of clutter. Start with one counter and repeat the process each day until you have it all done.

Hit the Medicine Cabinet

You might be surprised at what you have in your medicine cabinet that you don't need. In less than five minutes, you can declutter this area of your home simply by looking for medicines that have expired and getting rid of empty containers.

Empty One Drawer Per Day

If you've wanted to organize your drawers, start with just one. You can empty the drawer and only put back the things that really do belong. One drawer a day will take you less than five minutes and can help you declutter fast.

Set a Declutter Appointment

This tip works great for those working from home. Set a time every day, just for five minutes, to declutter a portion of your home. This can include your office, desk, garage and any area you want. If you keep this up, you will get through every area of the house and you will be able to keep the clutter out.

Enforce the 30-Day Rule

After decluttering your home, make sure you put the 30-day rule in place. This rule will keep you from replacing the clutter with new stuff. Instead of rushing out to buy more things, write down the date you decided you wanted to buy something and wait 30 days. If you still want it then, get it. If not, you have avoided adding more clutter to your home.

These tips will help you declutter your home fast and keep it free of clutter. If you want to achieve success with decluttering, split it up into five-minute tasks and tackle one a day until you're done.

Advantages & Disadvantages of Hardwood Flooring for Your Kitchen

You may have thought that putting wood flooring in the kitchen isn't a great idea. After all it's going to get wet, it could get scratched up and it may not provide the durability you desire. However, you may be surprised at how durable hardwood floors can be.

When installed, hardwood floors will be sealed and if it's done correctly, they can be a great option in the kitchen. Let's look at the advantages and disadvantages before you make a decision.

Advantages of Hardwood Flooring in the Kitchen

One of the biggest advantages of hardwood flooring is the beauty it provides. You can choose several varieties including different wood grain patterns, which means you get a unique floor fit perfectly for you. Hardwood flooring can also be sanded and refinished with any color you want. This could be the perfect way to get exactly what you want.

While beauty is the main appeal of hardwood flooring, these floors are also very durable. Yes, water is the worst enemy of wood, but hardwood flooring will be sealed to ensure water cannot damage it. The only types of kitchen flooring more durable are concrete and some types of tile.

Another huge advantage is the versatility of hardwood flooring. Since it can be sanded and refinished, it can be made to fit any kitchen design. It's also softer and warmer than tile, which means it will feel better when you're walking on it.

Disadvantages of Hardwood Flooring in the Kitchen

There is no such thing as a perfect kitchen flooring option. Every option comes with advantages and disadvantages. For hardwood flooring, one of the biggest disadvantages is the cost. It's not cheap and you will pay $4 to $12 per square foot before installation. The labor cost of installation can be high, as well, especially if you want it sanded and refinished.

Another disadvantage is the maintenance. When you maintain hardwood flooring properly, it can last for 100 years. However, if you don't take care of it, you may end up with dented, scratched or even warped wood flooring. Your flooring needs to be sanded and refinished about every ten years and this isn't a cheap process.

Hardwood flooring is also harder than vinyl, linoleum or cork flooring. If you prefer a softer flooring option, this could be an issue.

While hardwood flooring isn't perfect, it could be perfect for you. Consider the advantages and disadvantages before making your final decision.

Stock vs. Semi-Custom vs. Custom Kitchen Cabinets

While it's important to love your kitchen faucet and your beautiful kitchen countertop really creates a great focal point, having the right cabinets is likely the most important decision you'll make for your kitchen design.

The cabinetry is like the foundation of the kitchen with everything else being built based around the cabinets. It's important to choose ones that you will love because you will be opening and closing them, as well as replacing and removing items multiple times per day. Take a look at the three types of cabinets you can choose from and how they differ.

Stock Kitchen Cabinets

Many choose to go with a stock kitchen cabinet selection because they are readymade, pre-manufactured cabinet option. They are readily available to purchase, as well as ready to be delivered and installed. While you won't enjoy a huge selection of colors and styles, you don't have to worry about decision overload or having a long wait time on getting them custom-built. You will instead have to choose from a selection and build your design about the standard sizes they come in.

You'll find that stock cabinets come in basic sizes that increase by three-inch increments, with about 12-inch or 24-inch depths. They will be priced on their color, material, and size, with prices being significantly less than other options while offering much fewer varieties of finishes.

This is because stock kitchen cabinets are built in a large production factory where they are boxed up and stocked in a warehouse where they are ordered from a company catalog by the customer. You won't find the quality craftsmanship of other options or options like crown molding and extended warranties, but you'll save a great deal of money on this large portion of your kitchen design.

Custom Kitchen Cabinets

On the opposite end of the spectrum is the custom-built cabinet option. This option is going to be the most expensive of the three, but it may be worth it for such a large portion of your kitchen's function and focal point.

You want to love your cabinets for many years to come rather than someday want to change them up again after being tired of the look of your stock cabinets. Custom cabinets can fit your kitchen perfectly with measurements and styles being customized just to your specifications.

You can work with a standard sized cabinet and then start changing details and features based on what you prefer. This does mean that it will take much longer to get from the design point to being installed in your kitchen since custom cabinets are much more labor-intensive. They can be built on or off-site by a carpenter or manufacturer, but be prepared to pay much more either way.

The exciting part about going custom is that anything is possible from crazy sizes to unique color schemes since they are built from scratch to your design. If you have a strange shape in your kitchen to fill in or worry about a potential gap using stock cabinets, this will solve this problem, and you don't have to pay a middleman but rather, you'll just pay factory direct pricing. You can finally get the storage you want, the vision you've dreamt of, and the unique look that future buyers won't find anywhere else.

Semi-custom Kitchen Cabinets

If you find yourself wanting something in the middle of the two, semi-custom is the perfect option for you. Semi-custom cabinets are an option that takes the best of both worlds; affordable stock cabinets with customized detailing options.

You'll still work with stock cabinet sizes unless you want certain dimensions and want to wait for a resizing while getting to enjoy some creativity in the individualized design details without the expense of custom cabinets.

You can modify your dimensions, unlike stock cabinets, while selecting features from a catalog for a more customized design that won't cost you what a custom cabinet option would. You will pay upcharges for the accessories and customization which also leads many to question if custom cabinets would have been the same cost or cheaper. Yet, this is the most popular option since it's for the budget-conscious that still want some personalization.

The decision is yours between these three varieties. If you are seeking affordability and quick delivery, you'll find that stock cabinets are the way to go, while those seeking something customized to their exact needs going with custom cabinets, and those preferring a happy medium may like the idea of a semi-custom design. Consider which one is right for you!
